

Aims and Scope

The Journal of Membrane Science and Research (JMSR) is currently an Open Access journal with Free of Charge publication policy, which provides a focal point for academic and industrial chemical and polymer engineers, chemists, materials scientists, and membranologists working on both membranes and membrane processes, particularly for four major sectors, including Energy, Water, Environment and Food. Primary emphasis is on structure, function, and performance of essentially non-biological membranes. The Journal of Membrane Science and Research publishes Full Text Papers, State-of-the-Art Reviews (which should not only summarize the key research contributions in a subject, they should also provide critical evaluation of the scientific literature), Letters to the Editor, Research Notes, Perspectives (which should provide a focused discussion of an important area of membranes, either related to the science or technology of membranes, emphasizing recent developments, future challenges, and/or new opportunities) and Short Communications.

JMSR calls for papers that cover all aspects of membranes and membrane processes, except biological membranes.
